

SUGGESTS SOLDIERS
AS MAIL GUARDS

Chicago, April 26.—Regular army troops may be ordered to duty in guarding the Federal building, the larger branches of the postoffice, railroad terminal, loading platform, and branches of the Federal Reserve Bank, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster William B. Carlile.

The information was received in a letter from Postmaster-General Hays, he said. Mr. Hays' approval of troops to guard the Federal building and mail stations came as the result of a suggestion by Postmaster Carlile recently. Mr. Hays, in his letter today, asked Mr. Carlile to work out a plan in detail at once.

"I am particularly interested in the matter of having Federal troops patrol the stations in the larger cities where specially valuable mail is being handled," the Postmaster General's letter said. "Let's see what we can do about this right away."

Postmaster Carlile said that he had made no definite plans as yet, but would outline the guard system immediately.

Washington, April 26.—Postmaster General Hays refused yesterday to discuss orders for ordering troops about the postoffice and other Federal buildings in Chicago. It is understood, however, that plans to that effect are only tentative and involve no emergency.

Mail robbers got away with approximately $6,000,000 last year, of which some $3,000,000 has been recovered. Mr. Hays said yesterday, in discussing steps taken to remedy this "absolutely intolerable" condition:

"It must be stopped and it will be stopped," he said that in addition to the distribution of arms to postal employees, the standing reward of $5,000 to any employee of the department who brought in a mail robber, had been widened to include the general public.

It was continued with the addition of E. A. Fickel, who from his remarks showed that he has considerable information along this line. The committee was instructed to draft an ordinance and present it to the Retail Merchant, Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and then to the city council with their recommendation that a new ordinance be put into effect that would take the place of the present one.

It was brought out in the meeting that certain steps along this line were necessary in order that King street might be made safe for traffic and also made more pleasing to the eye which later will be possible by success along this line making it feasible for local merchants to put up attractive electric signs on their places of business.

Capt. G. H. Evans, chairman, reported that railway officials had stated to his committee that there will be necessary improvements made at Union Station for the accommodation of passengers coming and going.

F. Clinton Knight made an interest-

Gas Buggies--Things to worry about

ing report on the matter of the condition of the army which is at present used by the Alexandria Light Infantry. Inasmuch as the company has been changed from an infantry company to a machine gun company, he urged that something be done to make this building fit for the use to which it is being put. It was pointed out that since the maintenance of the machine gun company was a necessary institution in the life of the community, especially in the case of emergency, they should be urged upon to bring about needed improvements.

It was duly decided that the committee be continued and that they in conjunction with Commanding Officer Shepperson and other officers of the company and Business Manager Evans of the Chamber of Commerce bring before the attention of the city council the condition of the army.

Communications were read from Mrs. Olive Jones Whitmer coming from the U. S. Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board and the other from Dr. Louis E. Foulks, city health officer for which the bureau voted thanks.

Afterward H. T. Clarkson manager of the local telephone company and his assistant entertained the members with a most interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on the telephone service.

Suspension Bridge for the Grand Canon

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.—At El Tovar, the railroad terminus, the south and north rims of the Grand Canon are about fourteen miles apart. Tourists get their views of the famous chasm from the south rim. The north rim is practically inaccessible. It is about 1,500 feet higher than the south rim and gives one an entirely different series of views. From El Tovar one looks right down into the Colorado river in Granite Gorge; it is about a mile below and about seven miles away by trail.

This winter the National park service, which controls the Grand Canon now that it has been established as the Grand Canon National park, has been engaged in the work of constructing a suspension bridge across the Colorado, for two reasons: To make the north rim accessible and to facilitate travel by trail on the canon floor. Every bit of material has to go mule-back down the steep, zig-zag trails from the south rim. The government packers have been using Bright Angel trail—one must have ridden that trail to understand the work of transporting bridge material over it.

Well, the other day, Homer J. Arun was taking 11 pack-animals down the trail. And several of them were loaded with TNT, left over from the World war, for blasting. Just beyond the last turn, an animal slipped, the rest got excited and one went off the trail. Two more followed as the 11 animals were tied together. Things began to look interesting.

Packer Arun had a good excuse for making tracks. Instead, he jumped into the midst of the panic-stricken animals and succeeded in cutting out the remaining eight.

Of course, all three animals were killed. One fell 1,000 feet, without injuring his pack. One fell 200 feet with 150 pounds of TNT—which did not explode.

Maybe there will not be a rush next summer for that suspension bridge across the Colorado down in the bottom of the Grand Canon!
